REFORM ASPECTS OF NOT RETAINING MR. TYNER IN HIS OLD PLACE—MR. KEY—MR. THOMPSON'S APPOINTMENT—CASE OF MR. MORRILL—COLLECTOR WASHBURN'S REMOVAL—THE CUSTOM HOUSE—MR. EVARTS.

To the Editor of The Tribune.

SIR: In the summer of 1876 Mr. Tyner was made Postmaster-General by President Grant. As he had been Assistant Postmaster-General, his promotion might, at first blush, seem to be in the line of Civil Service Reform, but that is a delusion. We have the Nation newspaper's authority for saying that he owed his appointment to that old war-horse of the Senate Ring, Mr. Morton. "He was a strong supporter of the Morton policy in the South," says the Nation of July 13, 1876, and "got his present office for voting for the Force bill last year." For a Reform Cabinet there was but one course toward Mr. Tyner—turn him out neck and heels. On the contrary, the Reformers suddenly discovered that "when he was promoted to the Postmaster Generalship in July, 1876, he brought to the discharge of his duty marked ability," "that his business abilities and long experience in postal matters would be of value to the Government," that "he is not only an efficient officer, but a pleasing gentleman in manners and address," and that "his consent to perform the duties of a position with which he was thoroughly familiar, would give promise of continued efficiency in the postal service." So it seems his promotion for a purely political and even a very questionable reason was just as good in its results as if he had been promoted on Civil Service Reform principles, and that the Reformers, burning for a Radical change, could find no better man than the one whom that corrupt politician, Senator Morton, had put in as a reward for being his serviceable tool.

After all this, there was, on Reform grounds, still but one course to take regarding Mr. Tyner—retain him in the position for which he had so thoroughly proved his fitness. Not so. Mr. Tyner was displaced and Mr. Key, of whom I venture to say the country at large had never heard in connection with the postal service, was put in his place. And Mr. Key's first announcement of radical change in his department was the declaration that "he had no intention of making any changes and that he desired to run the machine about as his distinguished predecessor had done." His chief recorded exposition of Civil Service Reform principles is that if the Southern Democrats "oppose the Administration, the President will be compelled to use his official patronage in such a way as to give him strength in his own party; whereas, should Southern Democrats wisely extend him a support, he will be able to deal his patronage to them liberally." His most brilliant feat in the Reform Administration, which will not mix politics with business, and will have no appointment except for fitness, was the appointment on the recommendation of two Northern Democrats and two Southern "carpet-baggers," for the purpose of "showing that he was not governed by any prejudice against Northern Republicans," of a man who had been dismissed the public service, and the subsequent discharge of the same man on the representations of an anonymous traveler. Here I think the Reformers are right, and that this is a radical change. I recollect no other instance of a Cabinet Minister, within two months of his appointment, personally and directly pledging the Federal patronage as pay for votes. Civil Service Reform did well to displace Mr. Tyner, and put Mr. Key in his place, for I do not believe that Mr. Tyner, with all the training of his Ringmaster Morton, would ever have been equal to the accomplishment of this feat. But when it comes to the mere performance of the people's post-office business I cannot agree with that exuberant Reformer who declares, in allusion to Mr. Tyner's reluctant acceptance of a subordinate position, that "Civil Service Reform is half accomplished when Ole Bull condescends to play second fiddle." I think that Civil Service Reform is standing on what it is pleased to call its head, when it asks Ole Bull to play second fiddle and puts in the street-organ man to lead the orchestra.

Nor does the matter seem to be materially mended by Mr. Key's late sudden outburst of Spartan virtue upon the head of some unlucky special agent who seems not to have the knack of knowing what to say and what to understand without saying. This specially stupid agent blurts out that "the understanding when he was appointed was that he should aid his party friends in organizing an Administration party in his State." "You were not," sternly rejoins this Brutus of Reform; "you were not appointed to organize and build up an Administration party in your State; you were appointed to do the work of the Post-office Department." Now, in view of the special agent's assertion, that he understood that he was to aid in building up an Administration party, and in view of the Chief's declaration that the patronage was to be used to strengthen the Administration in the South, this war-dance of incorruptibility executed by Mr. Key, in his letter of June 15, does not seem particularly imposing. I am inclined to think that the special agent was more frank than false. "I cannot, I dare not, I will not," says this Cabinet Casabianca, "give special privilege to [illegible]." The gentleman doth protest too much, methinks. The fearlessness, the self-sacrifice, the heroism with which the Postmaster-General sits in his easy chair at the Post-Office, and marshals his special agents to do battle with the ferocious foes of the Post-Office Department, is enough to create a soul under the ribs of death. We always supposed, until Mr. Key came, that the postal service was a comparatively tame and peaceful affair; but one blast upon his bugle-horn—and down through the [illegible] "On horseback and stage lines—and even on foot"—think of special agents walking to their business!—"in rain, sunshine and storm"—probably and properly for a dog-day fog or a January thaw they may be allowed to turn in—but no, we find as we read on that they are not going to be allowed to drizzle out of it that way. "Night and day, in all sorts of weather," this martinet will have his trained warriors scouring the country in headlong hunt for lost letters and pilfering postmasters!

But what inspiriting views of the postal service we should have missed had that special agent happened not to write his offending letter just at this time!—just in time to give Mr. Key an opportunity to parry and qualify his imprudent promise and still more imprudent threat that the patronage of the Post-Office Department should be used to uphold or cast down the Southern Democracy according as that stiff-necked party should bend or refuse to bend to the yoke of the Administration,—just in time also for me to interpolate into my proof Mr. Key's daring war-hoop of reform, shouted out in public to the Special Agent, but not quite loud enough to drown the sibilant echoes of that unfortunate private whisper to his brother, which somehow found its way over all the mountain sides!

"Everybody," says the same Reformer, "seems well satisfied with the appointment of Mr. Thompson of Indiana to the office of Secretary of the Navy, though nobody, it seems, had even thought of him as a Cabinet officer. But when Judge Peterson of Terre Haute asked President Hayes how he came to think of 'Dick' Thompson as a member of his Cabinet, the President said: 'Nearly forty years ago I heard him make a speech in Columbus, Ohio. I stood a square away, but I heard distinctly every word of his silvery voice, and his wonderful eloquence impressed me so that I have never forgotten it.'"

If there is any truth in this, it is probably so docked and distorted as to be a practical falsehood; but none the less is it incumbent on the Civil Service Reformer to point out that radically changed rule which makes silvery eloquence in an inland orator the required "fitness" for Secretaryship of the Navy.

Secretary Robeson has long been the awful example of the Reformers. The Revelations of iniquity which we have been promised in his Department have made our blood run cold with delightful anticipations. "Secretary Thompson," says the Reformer, whetting our appetite, "is devoting his entire time (extending his labors even far into the night) to a most thorough investigation of the business of the Navy Department." Angels might weep at the spectacle of that blessed saint and martyr sitting up till half-past 11 o'clock, "rasling" with Mr. Robeson's accounts, while an aureole of millers and midges and mosquitoes and June-bugs, which his solitary gas-light has attracted, beat their devil's tattoo around his devoted head.

But like the cruel King who "bade her to look on torture," buoyed up by the firm faith that Secretary Robeson is going to catch it, and in the next paragraph but one the same Reformer tells us that "it may be said that in spite of reports to the contrary, which have been freely circulated lately, he has as yet discovered no evidence of dishonesty in the administration of his predecessor!" Why, then, thunders a disappointed people, is he sitting up o' nights? Dishonesty is all there is of it. We were promised a feast of fat things, and if there is no fraud, Secretary Thompson might as well turn down the gas and go home! But no. "He does find that a system of conducting the business of the department different from that which he will pursue and from that which he believes the law authorizes was prevalent under the last Administration."

That is better than nothing, as the good old lady said when she found that though her son had given up the eternal punishment of hell fire he did believe in a sort of purgatory. But it is rather disappointing to find it all whittled down to a difference in the construction of law between Secretary Robeson and Secretary Thompson. And as Secretary Robeson was a lawyer of high standing at the New Jersey bar when he was called into the Grant Cabinet, as he was for some years Attorney-General of his State and descended from a line of Attorney-Generals in a State noted for its legal talent, perhaps the construction is as likely to be correct as his construction as the silver-tongued [illegible] of the Columbus speech.

Last August, in a public speech at Cincinnati, Mr. Schurz said: "I predict with as much assurance as things still to come can be predicted [of course such a master of English as Mr. Schurz knows that things come cannot be predicted at all] that Gov. Hayes if elected [illegible] will keep faithful public servants in their offices against all attempts to have them replaced by the political tools or the personal favorites of party leaders. [illegible] 'Honesty, competency, and fidelity,' will be regarded by him as the only decisive qualifications for public employment."

On March 13, a Reform paper announces that "ex-Gov. Aiken of South Carolina, an old Whig, who had been acting with the Democrats a few years, will be Collector of Customs at Charleston, S. C., as another olive branch to the old Whig element of the South."

I have not the smallest objection to ex-Gov. Aiken's appointment, but on which twig of the olive branch blooms the honesty, competency or fidelity, for which alone Gov. Aiken should be appointed?

The same paper says: "Ex-Secretary Morrill's appointment as Collector of Customs at Portland, will be approved by everybody. After twenty years of continuous public service [illegible] Secretary Morrill retires from the Treasury Department hopelessly shattered in health, and very poor in purse. This office, which will give him a moderate income, was very cheerfully vacated by the President. Mr. Israel Washburn, who has occupied it sixteen years, being reputed wealthy."

As Mr. Morrill filled his Secretaryship with great satisfaction to the country, and as Mr. Schurz pledged President Hayes to keep faithful public servants in their offices, it is difficult for a confiding reform neophyte to see why Mr. Morrill was not retained in the Treasury. The reduction of force which Secretary Sherman has made was not begun by him. Secretary Morrill was as strenuously and as painfully engaged in it as Secretary Sherman. Secretary Sherman says, with unquestionable truth, that he "never suffered more pain in his life than he did in the removal of employes," and he says, honorably, "that his predecessor had testified and told him that the force must be reduced"—claiming no merit for continuing Mr. Morrill's reform—for which Mr. Morrill also, being a mere politician, and no reformer, had not thought of claiming merit. As, however, Mr. Morrill could not be continued in the Treasury I am heartily glad that he was provided with even "a moderate income" outside it. The Reformer, I insist, takes altogether too gloomy a view of Mr. Morrill's physical condition; but all the same, will he tell us which rule of the new Reform schedule it is which lays down "shattered health" as a qualification for office, and which one it is that prescribes the use of collectorships as a compensation? I am not censuring the President's action. I rejoice in it. I only do not see wherein it is a "radical change" from the old ways. The President "cheerfully vacated" Mr. Washburn out of the office. But did Mr. Washburn share in the cheerfulness? Is "wealth" a Reform "cause" for dismissal from office after 16 years of faithful occupancy and 26 years of faithful and "continuous public service?" I am content to make a virtue of necessity and accept things as they are, but if Civil Service Reform were in strict operation, I should think Mr. Washburn would still be in the Portland collectorship, and Mr. Morrill in the Treasury; and Mr. Sherman in the Senate, and Mr. Stanley Matthews in his law-office in Cincinnati, with Satan standing at his elbow in dumpling despair of finding any mischief still for his busy hands to do.

One of the most corrupt practices and crying evils of the New-York Custom-house and one which the new Civil Service Reform is to extirpate root and branch, is allowing officers to retain their situations and receive their salaries, while pursuing some other lucrative occupation outside the Custom-house. "The people," it is virtuously and indignantly said by Reformers, "engage and expect to receive the whole working time of those whom they employ," and having enunciated this proposition, the same Reformers [illegible] us that "Secretary Evarts drove down from the State Department to-day to the Supreme Court Chamber in the Capitol to argue a case," and "Mr. Evarts has gone to New-York to argue the case of the Vanderbilt will before the Surrogate's Court for a fee of $50,000," and "the learned counselor made his appearance in the Supreme Court of the United States and argued a case involving large interests in behalf of the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal Company against the State of Virginia," and "Mr. Evarts has gone to Albany to argue in a horse railroad case," and altogether it would appear from the newspapers that during the first two months of his official life Mr. Evarts was absent from his post longer than was Mr. Fish during the eight years of his Secretaryship. Why is it any worse for a twelve-hundred-dollar Custom-house clerk to eke out his salary by outside business, than it is for an $8,000 Cabinet officer? "But Mr. Evarts is not a rich man," says one, "and the miserable pittance paid to the Secretary of State and his chief salary will little more than pay his house rent." Is it not the same pittance that Secretary Fish received, and will it not go as far toward paying Mr. Evarts's house rent as it did toward paying Mr. Fish's? And if Mr. Evarts could not live on it, could he not give to the country the noble spectacle of a great man dying greatly for lack of it? "But Mr. Evarts's legal engagements were made before he became Secretary." The late Mr. A. T. Stewart's business engagements were made before he was appointed Secretary under the [illegible] corrupt Administration, but he relinquished the secretaryship. "Mr. Evarts says that his salary alone would cut but a sorry figure in meeting his family expenses," and so the leading member of the Administration of Reform which is to inaugurate the reign of integrity and economy [illegible] off into practices of doubtful propriety, and nothing but doubtful propriety, and anything but doubtful dignity. The leading member of the Administration, the representative of our country in all relations with foreign Powers, the head of the State Department of this Government, leaves his [illegible] to plead a case before a petty tribunal. The chief personal adviser of the President argues a case before a tribunal. The chief personal adviser of the President argues a case before a tribunal whose composition and constitution make one of his official duties, a tribunal in which at this moment a vacancy exists which it may at any time become Mr. Evarts's official duty to assist in filling. How many times during the Belknap trial were Washington officials warned of the dangers of extravagance and of inordinate social ambition and display. How fervently were they exhorted to practice frugality and decency by living within their income! With what vigilance, with what zeal, with what interest and immense moral effect will this Administration pounce upon the wretched underling who is battening upon the spoils of his $1,500 office in a custom-house and making outside profits in dead hours, while Mr. Evarts darts back and forth between law court and State Department like a weaver's shuttle.

Just here the Reformers [illegible] to have heard a rustling in the tops of the trees and to have [illegible] long enough to affirm that Mr. Evarts has seen the error of his ways and will go and sin no more.

I am very glad to hear it, but Mr. [illegible] never sinned at all.

Let me do Mr. Evarts the justice to say that [illegible] Reform [illegible] peared to come from him. But when the Reformers have fairly yoked themselves to their car of Juggernaut and sound the timbrel to assemble the faithful, they can't [illegible] and thump and bump [illegible] whose [illegible] over the stones.

GAIL HAMILTON.

June 11, 1877.

P. S.—Some days after my last letter had gone to the Tribune the statement appeared that Mr. Schurz was much annoyed by the report that he was paying his debts to Mr. Schneider, that Mr. Schurz never had any business connection with Mr. Schneider, [illegible] to be sponsor for the character and standing of Schneider.

Mr. Schurz [illegible] but no misfortune [illegible] upon him to [illegible] but such [illegible] is common to public men. I can easily believe that the story was entirely false, but to me the progress of the same Reform papers that so enthusiastically [illegible] Reform, and my point is just as strong against the Reformers who [illegible] without [illegible] Mr. Schurz [illegible] wronged by the slander that he was paying his personal debts in appointing Mr. Schneider, than was Mr. Chandler by the slander that he was providing for his personal friends in appointing Mr. [illegible]. Perhaps Mr. Schurz will presently come to believe that a part at least of that nation's corruption which made him so uncomfortable during our Centennial Year, festered only on the tongue of slander.

And now comes Mr. Brentano, an honored Congressman from Mr. Schneider's own city of Chicago, to embroil us still further by publicly saying that Mr. Schneider cheats his relatives, does not pay his debts, is generally a cumberer of the ground, and was forced to withdraw in consequence [illegible] that unhappily, Mr. Schurz finds himself in the embarrassing attitude of commending to his fellow-members of the Cabinet a dishonest and unfit man for a responsible foreign appointment. All this [illegible] have been a natural and pardonable error on the part of Mr. Schurz—whom I believe to be a man of integrity—but how lucky [illegible] was not committed by Gen. Logan or Senator Oglesby or any other political war-horse of Illinois.

People who neglect the [illegible] ailments are [illegible] live to make old bones. The secret of hale and vigorous old age, lies not only in taking care of one's health in early life, by the observance of sanitary rules, but also by judicious medication when the premonitory symptoms of bodily disorder manifest themselves. Indigestion, bowel and liver complaints, are fruitful causes of injury to the constitution. These disorders should be, therefore, checked without delay. The best [illegible] for the purpose is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. This standard preparation disciplines the digestive organs, gives renewed impetus to the biliary secretive function, and exerts a beneficial influence upon the organs of urination. It has no rival as a remedy for and preventive of chills and fever and bilious remittents, infuses vigor into the debilitated frame, and is an excellent appetizer and [illegible]

A DISCOURAGING TASK.

One of the comical elements of the present political tumbling is furnished by the wrestling matches which come off daily in the columns of the Boston Journal between the editorials and the special despatches. The editorial page is devoted to the laudation of anything and everything that is supposed to emanate from the White House, and if any fact happens to conflict with the "new policy," the editor regards it as "so much the worse for the fact" and he prances for it lance in rest with desperate ardor. A few days ago its special noted the well known fact that Chief Justice Waite and family were treated with marked incivility while he was in South Carolina presiding over trials in which but for boasted contempt for oaths and for the laws certain members of the "chivalry" would have been convicted of the crimes of violence and outrage. The Journal could not abide any reflection upon the "high tone" and amiable disposition of the rifle-club aristocracy, and it at once sought to discredit the fact. On Saturday it editorially declared:

Judge Waite feels mortified respecting the statements which have been made public respecting his treatment while in South Carolina. He says he is not conscious of any act of incivility.

That editorially on Saturday, and Monday's issue brings from its own Washington "special" dated Sunday, this actually cruel response:

The statement by the Associated Press to the effect that Chief Justice Waite is surprised at the reports that he did not receive social consideration in South Carolina, and denied these reports, can scarcely have been authorized by the Chief Justice himself. It is certainly a fact that the Charleston papers admit that the Chief Justice and his family were socially ill-treated while there. They confess it by making haste to explain the reason why he was so ignored. Editorials gravely state that he was in company with United States Judge Bond, against whom the chivalry have a spite, on account of his action in connection with the suits relative to the election, and for that reason he could not receive social consideration. A gentleman who arrived from Charleston this morning, and who lives at the hotel where Chief Justice Waite and his wife stopped, says that of his own knowledge the Charleston ladies refused to call upon Mrs. Waite or in any way to recognize her. The chivalry may be ashamed of their conduct, but they cannot, and no one for the Chief Justice, can deny the fact.

And now the editor is in a perspiration again. But the "specials" do not stop with the case of the Chief Justice. The Journal has been for several months singing, shouting and whistling the Democratic statement about the large number of negroes who have voted the Democratic ticket—"breaking the color-line," you know, under the new policy; and now comes its ruthless special and lets all the gas out of that balloon in this fashion:

One of the frequent boasts of the Democrats in the campaign was that numbers of negroes voted the Democratic ticket, and had become Democrats. The Richmond Despatch, which arrived to-night, denies this in an editorial which opposes allowing negroes to vote at the Democratic primary elections. The Despatch says there are no conservative negroes, and to open the ballot box to negroes would be to open it to fraud. The Despatch adds: "We do not believe that one hundred negroes voted the Conservative (meaning Democratic) ticket at any election ever held in Virginia. The negroes are all Republicans. They regard that negro as a traitor to his own people who votes the Democratic ticket. We beg to be excused from entering into a scramble with darkies as to who shall be the white people's candidate for Governor."

Again we find the Journal complacently saying:

The Tribune remarks that there is a perceptible ebb in the silver dollar wave. The dangerous point has been passed.

We presume "the dangerous point" referred to was that at which the President authorized the statement that he no longer agreed with financial authorities, but had become an advocate of the "double standard," and that the point was "passed" when he immediately after caused the Secretary of the Treasury to announce the Cabinet united on the gold basis. But the editor's congratulation is accompanied in the same issue by another of those perplexing "specials" which indicates that the "point of danger" is not passed and thus announces that the "silver dollar wave" is still swashing about in "semi-official circles":

The latest silver talk in semi-official circles is to the effect that the remonetization of the silver dollar will be agreed upon, with a twenty dollar of maximum legal tender quality, and that recommendation will be made that gold pieces be coined of the denominations of two and a half or three, five, ten and fifty.

We must say that the "specials" seem to get decidedly the best of it thus far in these "collar and elbow" encounters, and the editorial side is constantly getting very awkward and thumping back falls. But he will be up and at it again to-morrow, as persistent as ever in asserting the infallibility of whatever seems to be the latest conclusion reached at the White House at any subject from the undermining of a legal State Government to the "remonetization" of something cheaper than greenbacks to help Stanley Matthews and tickle the Ohio inflationists. Go it Editor! Go it Special! It is well to have some fun in this hot weather.

A SCORCHER!

Read Gail Hamilton's last letter, which we print on our first page to-day. It is in its truth, and thrice-armed in that respect, the fingers of a woman become as a mailed hand in smiting humbug.

The Iowa Republicans are not ardent admirers of Mr. Stanley Matthews, or of the "policies" he invents for the Administration. The Burlington Hawkeye, one of the best-natured of papers, can't stand Matthewsism, and it emphatically remarks: "It is rumored that parties in Washington, in their kindness, are willing to furnish the Republican State Convention a lot of ready-made resolutions indorsing the President's policy. We don't know that this is true, but we do know that if any such resolutions are presented in the convention, they will be kicked out, and the man who send them will receive a rebuke that he will remember for the balance of his life. It may do for the powers that be in Washington to send a commission into a Southern State to trade and dicker away the victory that was gained at the cost of life itself, but it will not do to attempt to 'manage' Iowa on the Stanley Matthews plan, and if the attempt is made it will receive the rebuke it deserves."

HARRISON'S PERISTALTIC LOZENGES.

A POSITIVE CURE FOR,

Costiveness, Dyspepsia, Piles,

Oppression after Eating, Headache, Dizziness,

For thirty years these Lozenges have retained the confidence of the Medical Profession and the public generally, in spite of all competitors or imitators. They are the most effectual remedy for HABITUAL COSTIVENESS and its results, viz: Piles, Indigestion, Headache, Dizziness, Languor, Oppression of Food, Heartburn, Flatulence, Bad Taste in the mouth, Torpid Liver, &c., &c.

Females who cannot endure strong purgatives find these Lozenges admirably suited to the many complaints incident to their sex, by restoring nature and preventing periodical pains and obstructions. They are also just the thing for children suffering with worms, being a sure cure, as it is agreeable to take as the most pleasant confection.

Travellers find the Lozenges just what they need, as they are so compact and inodorous that they may be carried in the vest pocket, and as an aperient or laxative they are unequalled.

Testimony of a Boston Merchant.

BOSTON, May 13, 1865.

This certifies that I have used Dr. Harrison's PERISTALTIC LOZENGES, and after suffering a long time with the Piles I experienced an entire cure, and recommend their use to all afflicted in the same way, without reserve, or especially if attended with any constipation.

R. B. FORBES.

From the General Ticket Agent of Montreal and Boston Air Line Railroad.

LYNDEVILLE, Vt., March 29th, 1877.

Messrs. E. S. HARRISON & Co., Gents.—The business of the line having increased very much, I am obliged to confine myself very closely to office work, and have in consequence been much troubled with constipation. I find in your Lozenges just what I need: not a strong purgative, but an efficient help to nature. [illegible]

Its effect on hard water, is almost magical, making it as soft as rain water. It really costs nothing to use it as it saves more than its cost in soap and fuel, to say nothing of the time and labor saved. It is hoped that all who have washing to do will avail themselves of the free trial package. Although large [illegible] but the [illegible] were mostly large wooden buildings [illegible] employed hundreds of men and women who will now be thrown out of employment.

Families Lose their All

[illegible] families [illegible] saved but a small portion of their furniture. Many families saved only the clothes they put on to escape from the burning building. Washington street, the street of the shops [illegible] and the stores had a shabby, impoverished look. The fire spread over Sewall, School and Spring streets and finally got back to Pleasant st., where in Dr. [illegible] barn it was finally checked. The alarm was given at 1.30 A. M. and the fire was out at 8 o'clock. One of the difficulties in fighting the fire was inefficiency of the water supply, the main reservoir having been rendered inaccessible by the flames.

The Principle Buildings Burned

were the South church, Lyceum Hall and all the town buildings. [illegible] a [illegible] disposition to commit depredations [illegible] the military were ordered to do guard duty. The telegraph wires were destroyed. Information from the scene of the fire is much delayed in consequence. The following

Boot and Shoe Manufacturies Were Burned

[illegible] Cropley and Monroe, H. F. V. Bartlett & Co., Wormsted and Woodfin, William Stevens Jr., house and factory, Joshua Lefavor, House and factory, Jonathan Orne & Green, Bartlett & Dock, Samuel Crowell, Jonathan Brown, William Lefavor (house and factory). Joseph Harris, and Samuel Sparhawk are the only boot and shoe manufacturers who escaped. The manufacturers burned out are all understood to have been insured either wholly or in part, whether they will all rebuild is thought to be doubtful. At any rate is to turn boot and shoe trade of the place to Lynn and other neighboring towns for the present. Outside of the boot and shoe factory buildings which have been mentioned, the buildings which have been burned were nearly all dwelling houses.

The Entire Loss

will aggregate $800,000 it is thought. It is as yet to early to give anything but a rough estimate. Our local insurance companies are very light sufferers. As near as known the Shoe and Leather Insurance Company has an insurance in the burnt district of $7,000, Commonwealth, $2,000, Franklin, $5,000, Shawmut, $3,000, Manufacturers, $4,000, Washington, $1,550, Firemen's, $5,000, Prescott, $2,000.

The Town and its Business Interests

Marblehead is a town of about 7,700 inhabitants. The calamity which has thus overtaken the ancient town has fallen upon it at a time when the business depression had been so long settled as to almost produce the conviction that the town had seen its best days. It has lately become a serious question and anxiously discussed among her trading men as to what move in a business direction would be most likely to prove successful in imparting new life to its stricken commercial interests, the boot and shoe manufacture which for some years past has long been depreciating until it is more uncertain and relatively of less value than the old time fishing interest upon which the town was originally built, and now this visitation may be thought the climax of a long series of adverse influences sufficiently discouraging to completely paralyze the industries of the place. If this state of things should result, however, it will be the first instance of the kind in New England history.

Another Account.

Another despatch says the fire, which began here in the middle of the night and continued until extinguished by the efforts of the firemen with aid from Salem and Lynn, has swept nearly the whole of the business portion of the town out of existence. Although many dwellings were burned, fortunately a great amount of suffering will be entailed, because the dwellings of the poorer classes were not touched. The fire began in a barn, now used as a grist mill just back of the Marblehead Hotel, on Pleasant street. The cause is as yet unknown. The grist-mill burnt rapidly and from it flames were communicated to buildings in its rear, and from thence to other buildings so rapidly that before long they were beyond control of the fire department. It spread in every direction, both ways on Pleasant st., and as soon as School st. was reached the property was made the ready vehicle for conveying destruction to other avenues.

ST. JOHN.

The Missing—Contributions.

ST. JOHN, N. B., June 25. The parties at the hospital injured at the fire are doing well. Those still missing are T. O'Leary, Mr. Coughlin, a woman and child of Smith St., and Miss Vance. The aggregate contribution for the sufferers is $200,000, besides provisions and clothing.

Clothing wanted—Excursionists

Insurance agents call upon the insured to present their claims at once for adjustment. Five thousand people came to the Rink asking for food and clothing. The latter is wanted particularly. A movement is on foot for the erection of temporary dwellings for the poor. The authorities promise work to all who apply. Enormous crowds of excursionists are arriving by trains and steamers to view the wreck. The Queen's message was read to-day, many hearts rejoiced at her majesty's thoughtfulness. The 97th Regiment leaves for Halifax to-morrow, the militia will then take charge.

Aid from Maine Cities

Rockland has a committee at work raising subscriptions.

Augusta has raised $2,000 and has forwarded clothing, bedding, etc.

Other Cities

The Caledonia Club of San Francisco has subscribed $500.

Mayor Earle of St. John acknowledges the receipt of $165 from Lawrence, Mass. He says: "Cash is acceptable [illegible]. Among our principal [illegible] shoes, clothing [illegible] provision. The destitution is frightful."

THE PRINCE OF MONTENEGRO MISSING.

Important Movements Coming.

LONDON, June 25. The News despatch from Vienna Sunday night says that on the 23d 14,000 Russians received orders to move to [illegible] northwest from Kalafat. Large convoys of provisions were sent to Sistova. The coming week promises to be an important one.

The Crossing of the Danube

NEW YORK, June 25. Despatches from Galatz say that some 500 wounded arrived there during Friday. While the crossing was being made by the Russians there was heavy fighting. A Russian doctor states that of the first detachment of 800 which crossed he does not believe that 50 are now alive and unhurt. An Ibrail despatch of Sunday afternoon says the success of the Russians at crossing there was complete. The landing was safely made under great natural difficulties and there was not the slightest delay after the troops began passing until every man was across. At three o'clock Saturday morning the Czar, Czarowitch, Grand Duke Nicholas and Aides-de-Camp arrived at Ibrail from Ploiesti. The entire details of the crossing were communicated to the Emperor. The Czar and entire staff visited, inspected and finally rode across the pontoon bridge. All then returned to headquarters amid the wildest cheering from the troops drawn up ready to pass over. These men belonged to the last part of the two corps which continued passing into Dobrudscha all day Saturday and far into the night. In the afternoon the Czar proceeded by train to Galatz and afterwards visited the encampment of Montmerto.

England and Russia.

The Times in commenting on the correspondence between Gortschakoff and Derby, says the frankness has been met by frankness and the result is a conviction that the war, for which we may hope the speedy termination, ought not to endanger the good relations between England and Russia. Kirnan's London despatch says the English Cabinet disapproved of Gortschakoff's declaration as to Russia's policy in the Eastern war and the English Government is resolved not to allow even a temporary occupation of Constantinople by the Russians.

A terrific wind and rain storm swept over West Missouri, Iowa and a large portion of Illinois and Michigan yesterday doing great damage.

No. 11. Pikes vs. Fogg. On a note signed jointly and severally by [illegible] Drake and John H. Fogg, on which $100 and 12 per cent interest for some six years appears to be due. The defence was forgery. The jury found for the plaintiff. The defence moved for a new trial for newly discovered evidence. After verdict the defendant finds evidence that he was at Belfast the day the note bears date at Dixmont and the day before and after.

Barker for defendant.
Woodard for plaintiff.

No. 112. Prescott vs. Bangor. For personal injuries by plunging with his horse head foremost into a ditch dug by the city for laying water pipe and left insufficiently guarded and lighted.

Verdict for plaintiff for $472.73, which defendants seek to set aside by exceptions and motion. They object that plaintiff did not give requisite legal notice.

Reply—His attorney gave notice and the city records show action on such notice, and no notice is necessary because there is a common law liability as well as statute liability.

Vose for the city.
F. H. Appleton for plaintiff.

HANCOCK COUNTY

No. 75. Crabtree vs. Chapham. Replevin of a horse and five oxen.

Defence—Partnership property, the possession of which belongs as much to him but [illegible] to plaintiff.

Reply—Your facts might entitle you to your judgment for return if properly pleaded, but your pleadings are informal.

Rejoinder—But my pleading in brief statement set out the facts which you say entitle me to judgment. Pleadings should be true.

I. A. Emery for plaintiff.
A. Wiswell for defendant.

No. 72. Hall vs. Nichols. Action of account so called, in which an order was made that defendant account and an auditor appointed who reported that the defendant owed the plaintiff $671.16, unless the Statute of Limitations was a bar, if [illegible] nothing was [illegible] either party.

Plaintiff claims that the statute of limitations applies in terms to particular actions and that the action of account is not one of them, and if it was not so that after a case has gone to an auditor and no suggestion made of unfairness report cannot be set aside, and it is too late to plead the general issue whatever it is and send it to the jury.

Defendant—The Statute of Limitation has a general application with certain exceptions of which this not one.

Emery for plff. A. Wiswell for d'ft.

No. 78. Foss vs. Crabtree. Trover for a building placed by plaintiff's son on defendant's land by his consent.

Defence—Trover does not lie in this case. You have no right to occupy my land now with your building against my consent. I am willing you should move it off.

Reply—You are very kind. It is worth less to haul off. It cost my son $1,000 to place it there. You offered your children house lots as gifts, of whom my son's wife was one, and after building and occupying awhile he thought best to convey to me.

Rejoinder—That is what is the matter. I am willing your son and my daughter shall occupy, but not you.

Plaintiff—But your daughter's mother having died, the mother in law makes trouble and that is what is the matter. After deceiving the young man to build the house and then turning him off you ought to pay smart money as an example.

Defendant—Let the law settle it, and then it will be settled.

A. Wiswell for plaintiff.
Hale & Emery for the defendant.

THE RELIEF FUND

By inadvertence Hon. Wm. B. Hayford's subscription of $50 to the St. John relief fund was omitted in copying the list printed yesterday. The following subscriptions have been reported since our last issue:

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| J and B Foster | $5.00 | H. L. Mitchell | $10.00 |
| Mrs. Cope[illegible] | 1.00 | B. B. Davis Jr. | [illegible] |
| Cash | 5.00 | T. J. Stewart, | 50.00 |
| Cash | 5.00 | Hollis B. Wi[illegible] | 1.00 |
| S. C. Hall Jr. | 5.00 | Whren & Robinson, | 5.00 |

The following additional sums were received at the WHIG AND COURIER office Monday:

|---|---|---|---|
| J T & I J Colman | $5.00 | Dan W. Maxfield | 5.00 |
| Jas. J. James, | 3.00 | Select Hall [illegible] | [illegible] |
| J. C. Mil[illegible] | 5.00 | Essex St. | [illegible] |
| | | [illegible] Lawson & C | 2.00 |

Our previous list should have credited $20.50 to Fletcher & Butterfield and their employes. The latter were all credited with their subscriptions except that the name printed by us W. B. Lawson, should have been W. L. Sampson.

The Trustees of the E. & N. A. Railway Co. have declined any compensation for the special train to and from St. John last week and have transported all the supplies for the sufferers free of charge. The ladies on the Essex street road have sent a contribution of clothing and bedding to be sent to St. John.

Messrs. J. S. Johnson & Co. of this city suffered the loss of their St. John branch which was burned out in the great fire. They estimate their losses between $10,000 and $11,000 with no insurance, but it will be seen that they join in contributing for the relief of the homeless and [illegible]. Mr. Jennings of the firm with his wife, was at the Waverly House, St. John at the time of the fire and they barely escaped destruction. They describe the scene as most appalling.

In explanation of the statement that none of the St. John officials were present to receive the special relief train from this city, we would state that Mr. Clark informs us that His Honor Mayor Earle of St. John came out to the station at Fairville and waited for the train nearly two hours when he was obliged to return to the city to attend to business matters.

Last evening we received copies of the St. John papers, in their reduced form as exchanges. Among the principal contributions we note the Government of New Brunswick $20,000, Dominion of Canada $[illegible],000. The citizens of Toronto raised the magnificent sum of $70,000 and Halifax has increased her contributions to $40,000.

The Hibernian Mutual Benevolent Society at a meeting last evening voted $100 which will be paid to the Relief Committee for the benefit of the St. John sufferers.

Parlor Entertainment for the Benefit of the St. John Sufferers

The entertainment gotten up by the lady boarders at Mr. Gilligan's on Hammond street, of which we made a brief announcement yesterday morning came off last evening and was in every respect a successful affair. The large dining hall was arranged as a concert room, a [illegible] platform being placed at one end [illegible] comfortable chairs arranged for the audience, who filled the room and also the small reception room and hall adjoining. At 8 o'clock Mr. G. [illegible] S. Hall, who officiated as master of ceremonies, announced the first piece in the programme which consisted of the following excellent selections given by the persons whose names are appended thereto, which will be seen to embrace an array of talent rarely combined in amateur parlor entertainment:

PROGRAMME

1 Selection [illegible] Orchestra [illegible] Messrs. Owen [illegible]
Duett [illegible]—Messrs. [illegible]
3 Song [illegible] Mrs. Sabine [illegible] Song by Mrs. [illegible]
4 [illegible] Duett [illegible] Miss [illegible] Merrill
Song [illegible]—Miss Wiley
Duett—Mrs. Sabine and Mrs. Erskine
Song [illegible] Miller—Mr. H. [illegible]
8 Piano Solo [illegible]—Miss Dyer of Portland [illegible]
9 Duett [illegible] Buck—Miss Wiley and Mr. Hynes
10 The Watcher—Mr. Farrington
11 Selection by the Orchestra

In an entertainment of this character and where all acquitted themselves so nicely it would be invidious to particularize and criticism would be out of place. We can truly say however that all the parts were given in a manner highly pleasing to the audience as was manifested by their hearty applause. While our local singers and performers were deserving of the highest praise, it is but just to speak of the talent from abroad whose opportune presence added so much to the interest of the occasion. Mrs. Sabine of Chicago, has a voice of much sweetness and power, and with her sister Mrs. Erskine also of Chicago, made a very pleasing addition to the programme while Miss Dyer of Portland, who arrived at the house last evening on a visit to her friends kindly consented to add to the pleasure of the entertainment by her talented performances on the piano. The ladies who conducted the entertainment wish to make acknowledgment of the kind assistance of Miss Wiley, who from the first took a hearty interest in the affair, and lent her charming voice to the occasion. The song by Mrs. Sabine was accompanied by her sister Mrs. Erskine, and the Duett by Mrs. Sabine, and Mrs. Erskine was accompanied by Mrs. N. H. Dillingham, sister of the two ladies named. The other accompaniments were by Miss Edith Brown who acquitted herself finely. Miss Jessie Lewis, had a stand where she dispensed button-hole bouquets. The net receipts were over forty dollars, which will be expended in the purchase of cloth for under garments to be made up by ladies.

After the entertainment was concluded Mr. Kimball took his place at the piano, and a large number remained and spent some time in dancing. The whole affair, although altogether impromptu was finely carried out and reflects much credit upon the ladies who got it up.

From Milo.

A correspondent at Milo writes: Rain is very much needed in this vicinity. Grass started well but now a light crop is expected unless we have rain soon. Other crops are not suffering as much. Potatoes are looking finely, and the farmers have them nearly all hoed. Quite a number of people report a frost there last Friday night.

The Good Templars and Sabbath School are to celebrate the Fourth together in this place. A home affair. No cards.

The smoke of the St. John fire was plainly seen at different parts of Milo.

There is talk of an Excelsior mill being put here by Bangor parties. Small favors gratefully received. Heretofore nothing short of a large cotton or woolen factory would have satisfied us, but now give us anything.

FROM GARLAND

A Hard Case

A correspondent at Garland writes: On Saturday, Mr. E. Burnham over 70 years of age, went some four miles away from this village to look after some colts at pasture. He took one of them out [illegible] a spring near by, when, giving it too much rope, he received a kick that resulted in a bad fracture of the leg above the knee. This was at two o'clock P. M. By the aid of a stick he raised himself and got to a tree, and supporting himself by it, called frantically for help, for two hours, as he thinks. Being in the woods and away from the road he received no response. He was a man of too much pluck to lie down before making a desperate effort to reach assistance. After a little time spent in deliberation, he cut the straps from his overalls, bound the two parts of the broken limb together and placed it carefully over the other limb. These preliminaries arranged he placed himself upon his back and propelled himself, head foremost, with his elbows over the rough ground for the distance of a half mile before reaching assistance. He was taken immediately home where medical aid was promptly summoned.

From Pittsfield

The First Reform Club still continues to thrive. The public meeting was held in the Universalist church last Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock. Fervent and forcible remarks were offered by different members of the Club.

Last Saturday P. M. a game of base ball was played on the Institute grounds between the Young [illegible] and the Snowdrop Club resulting in a victory for the former.

The Summer term of the village schools closes this week. The grammar school has been taught by Miss McGiles and the primary by Miss Emily Woods. Both have been highly successful.

It is very dry and dusty in this vicinity and vegetation is suffering badly for want of rain. The hay crops will be light.

The Colorado potato bug has made its debut in Pittsfield and is busily engaged in laying eggs and making arrangements to stop a while.

TO THE CONSUMPTIVE. Let those who languish under the fatal severity of our climate through any pulmonary complaint, or even those who are in decided consumption, by no means despair. There is a safe and sure remedy at hand, and one easily tried. "Wilbor's Compound of Cod Liver Oil and Lime," without possessing the very nauseating flavor of the Oil as heretofore used, is endowed by the phosphate of lime with a healing property which renders the oil doubly efficacious. Remarkable testimonials of its efficacy can be exhibited to those who desire to see them. Sold by A. B. Wilbor, Chemist, Boston. [illegible] eod

A rare combination of instructive, interesting, practical and useful matter is found in Andrews' Bazar. No department neglected or poorly attended to, and any department renders the journal worthy a place in the family. Send W. R. Andrews, Cincinnati, ten cents for sample copy.

HUNT'S REMEDY is not a new compound, it has been before the public 30 years and extensively used by all classes with and without the advice of Physicians. HUNT'S REMEDY has saved from a lingering disease and death hundreds of our citizens. HUNT'S REMEDY never fails to cure Dropsy and all Diseases of the Kidneys, Bladder and Urinary Organs.

Wilbor's Cod Liver Oil and Lime. The great popularity of this safe and efficacious preparation is alone attributable to its intrinsic worth. In the cure of Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Bronchitis, Whooping Cough, Scrofulous Humors and all Consumptive Symptoms, it has no superior if equal. Let none neglect the early symptoms of disease when an agent is thus at hand which will alleviate all complaints of the Chest, Lungs or Throat. Manufactured only by A. B. Wilbor, Chemist, Boston. Sold by all druggists. [illegible] eod&w

DR. SCHENCK'S PULMONIC SYRUP, SEA WEED TONIC, AND MANDRAKE PILLS. These medicines have undoubtedly performed more cures of consumption than any other remedy known to the American public. They are compounded of vegetable ingredients, and contain nothing which can be injurious to the human constitution. Other remedies advertised as cures for Consumption, probably contain opium, which is a somewhat dangerous drug in all cases and if taken freely by consumptive patients, it must do great injury, for its tendency is to confine the morbid matter in the system, which, of course, must make a cure impossible. Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup is warranted not to contain a particle of opium. It is composed of powerful but harmless herbs, which act on the lungs, liver, stomach and blood and thus correct all morbid secretions, and expel all the diseased matter from the body. These are the only means by which Consumption can be cured, and as Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup, Sea Weed Tonic and Mandrake Pills are the only medicines which operate in this way, it is obvious they are the only genuine cure for Pulmonary Consumption. Each bottle of this invaluable medicine is accompanied by full directions. Dr. Schenck is professionally at his principal office corner Sixth and Arch streets, Philadelphia, every Monday, where all letters for advice must be addressed.

TRUE ECONOMY is not in buying the lowest price articles. The best is cheapest. So with the fine cultivated and plantation grown spices imported by Messrs. EXPERIMENTS MADE AT THE STATE COLLEGE.

The following interesting and valuable report of an experiment is taken from the Farm Superintendent's Report of the Maine State College of Agriculture and Mechanic Arts, Orono, for 1876:—

Some changes have been made in the series of experiments carried on during the year covered by my report. In complying with the request of the Trustees of the college, that I study reduction of expenses and economy on the farm in all possible ways, it became necessary to drop from the list of experiments some things of value, and to reduce to the minimum of expenditure all of those retained. The more certainly to secure the reduction of expense, I have entrusted the harvesting, weighing and making up of results to the assistant superintendent, Mr. W. C. Fuller. This takes away from the students much of the educational value of the experiments, but the feeling of disappointment often expressed because the farm is not made a source of revenue to the college, has led me to yield to the strong pressure of public opinion and pursue a course evidently not in accordance with the design of these institutions. Just why it is insisted of the farm department alone that it shall be made a source of income to the college, and not chiefly a means of education in practical agriculture, does not readily appear. By ignoring the educational and experimental uses of the farm it can without doubt be made financially remunerative, but in proportion to the faithfulness with which its [illegible] for higher and more valuable purposes are recognized and developed, it will, like other educational departments of the college, take from the funds in the treasury rather than contribute to them.

Experiment in feeding swine with [illegible] meal and with skimmed milk, to [illegible] the [illegible] value of each food for the production of pork.

This experiment has been tried for seven successive years, with the same results as to the value of raw meal and cooked meal [illegible] have been compared. This year a comparison has been made with one pig fed on milk, while the others were fed on meal.

The four pigs selected to feed were from a cross between a Yorkshire boar and a Chester sow. They were taken from one litter, and were ten weeks old at the time of commencing the experiment. They were kept separately, in small pens with open yards, affording opportunity for exercise and free access to the fresh earth. Grass, weeds, and charcoal were occasionally fed to them as conducive to appetite and health. With these exceptions, nothing but meal mixed with water was fed to Nos. 1, 2 and 3, and nothing but milk to No. 4. The amount of food given was proportioned to the wants of each, and care was taken that while none of it was wasted, a full supply should be constantly provided. The food for each was weighed and prepared every morning. During the first four weeks of the experiment No. 1 was fed on cooked meal and Nos. 2 and 3 received raw meal. For the second period of four weeks No. 1 received raw meal and Nos. 2 and 3 were fed on cooked meal. This method of alternating the kind of food given was continued throughout the course of the experiment. Although it is open to objection on account of the change that is made in the character of the food at the end of each period of four weeks, it affords opportunity to compare the effect produced by the two kinds of food upon the same pigs at different times and also upon different pigs at the same time.

| Average, | | 7.2 | | 8.1 |

The average cost of increase in live weight by feeding on cooked meal is 12½ per cent more than by feeding on raw meal.

The cost per pound of live weight produced by feeding milk to pig No. 4, was 17.4 cents; or 141 3-5 per cent. more than the cost of producing pork from raw meal.

In the above experiment meal is reckoned at 70 cents per bushel of 50 pounds; and milk at one-half a cent per pound, or one and one-eighth cents per quart.

In conducting the experiment last year, skimmed milk was mixed with the meal fed to Nos. 1, 2 and 3, at the rate of six pounds of milk to every ten pounds of meal or sixty per cent. of the meal by weight; one hundred and ninety-four pounds of raw meal were fed with the skimmed milk given to No. 4. This year only meal mixed with water was given to Nos. 1, 2 and 3, and skimmed milk alone was fed to No. 4. The pigs in both cases were of the same parentage, were kept in the same pens, under the same conditions except this difference in feeding. It is interesting to compare the results of the two methods of feeding as given below.

Pigs fed with mixed food in 1875:

The aggregate gain from the mixed food given last year in the twenty-four weeks of the experiment, was 905½ pounds.

The aggregate gain from the method of feeding followed this year in the twenty-four weeks of the experiment, is 539½ pounds, a difference of 36[illegible] pounds in favor of the mixed food.

SAFE AND SURE.

MR. H. R. STEVENS:

In 1872 your Vegetine was recommended to me, and, yielding to the persuasions of a friend, I consented to try it. At the time I was suffering from general debility and nervous prostration, superinduced by overwork and irregular habits. Its wonderful strengthening and curative properties seemed to affect my debilitated system from the first dose, and under its persistent use I rapidly recovered, gaining more than usual health and good feeling. Since then I have not hesitated to give Vegetine my most unqualified indorsement, as being a safe, sure and powerful agent in promoting health and restoring the wasted system to new life and energy. Vegetine is the only medicine I use, and as long as I live I never expect to find a better.

Yours truly, W. H. CLARK,
